

XM Radio has become a great source of information and entertainment for me. While local traffic and weather has not yet come to Atlanta, I have listened to the Phoenix station to see what I can expect to hear in the near future. I often visit Phoenix, so I know the area well. I have found that the station features some of the most in-depth traffic reports I have ever heard. They report on the traffic for the entire city, not just the major highways. It is also available instantly, so there is no more sitting through countless commercials to hear the traffic report. Listeners can simply switch to their local traffic station, hear the report, and switch back to their commercial free music. I feel that this is a great service, and if people are willing to pay for it, I feel that it should be offered. There is no reason to restrict this service.
